On the cover

The world's democracies are right to seek change in Latin America's worst-governed country. But their responsibilities go further: leader, page 9. A failed revolution may itself be overthrown, page 17. How Venezuela's economy can recover from the Maduro regime, page 19. Hyperinflations can end quickly: Free exchange, page 65

• How to handle Huawei
Banning one of China's leading firms from operating in the West should be a last resort: leader, page 10. The tech giant is accused of rewarding trade-secret pilferers on staff, page 54

• Talking to the Taliban A deal to end the Afghan insurgency would be wonderful—as long as it is not a figleaf to cover an American retreat: leader, page 10. Edging towards a peace deal, page 21

• Better ways to tax the rich
How to raise money, reduce inequality—and limit the economic damage: leader, page 12. The Democratic presidential primary contest is already the most left-wing in decades: Lexington, page 34

• The future of fertility Thanks to education, global fertility could fall faster than the UN expects, page 49
